ONE OF WOUNDED IN KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS ARE TO CONFER THE SERIOUS CONDITION AT HOSPITAL FOURTH DEGREE

No new developments were announced today in connection with the shooting affray of yesterday afternoon, in which John Bartholomew and Louis Martina were wounded, charges against the latter being deferred until the outcome of Bartholomew's condition is fully known. Martina, at a late hour this afternoon, was reported to be recovering and no serious consequences in his case are anticipated. Bartholomew's condition, however, is serious. Some pieces of shattered bone were removed from his body today, relieving pressure on the spine and restoring the right leg from a state of paralysis which existed when the man was taken to the hospital.

The place of meeting will be the Berthana social hall and the local order will be assisted in conferring the degree by Joseph Scott, L. L. D. vice supreme master of Los Angeles and Jesse Hawley of Boise, Idaho. Right Rev. Bishop Glass of Salt Lake will be a guest of honor.

The ceremonies at the Berthana will be followed by a banquet at the Weber club and on Monday night, Ogden Council No. 777 will entertain the visitors at a dancing party in the Berthana. A large number of invitations are out for the Monday night event and it is expected to prove one of the finest social affairs of the season.

VERDUN'S LINES ARE VERY STRONG

French Paper Estimates Germans Are Ten Deep to Every Yarn of Front.

Paris, Feb. 24.—The Temps, in its military reviews, estimates that the Germans are employing on the average ten infantrymen to every three feet of front. Where the attack is fiercest north of Verdun—that is over a line eight miles in length between Brabant and Ornes.

The reviewer maintains that the operations are not necessarily preliminary to an attack to besiege Verdun, but comprise an attack on a wide part of the front of which Verdun forms a part of the rear support. The attacks, he declares, are still held within the first line works, while there are three other lines at strategic intervals behind the first. These lines are more solidly constructed

Second Contract With Rumania for 100,000 Carloads of Cereals Is Settled.

Milan, Feb. 24, via Paris, 5:05 a. m.—The Bucharest correspondent of the Secolo says that the second contract for 100,000 carloads of corn, oats, barley and other cereals has been settled between the Austro-German syndicate and Rumania and that it only remains to arrange the method of payment. It is said that the Austro-Germans have agreed to deposit half the sum involved in the National Bank of Bucharest. The delivery of 50,000 carloads of the first contract will be made a month earlier than was expected, as the Danube has not frozen over this year.

The correspondent adds that the Austro-Germans have also undertaken to purchase any surplus left over from the 1915 crop above the 100,000 carloads mentioned and after Rumania's own needs are supplied.

Water Active Agent in Making of Big Shells

Covering several acres in the midst of a densely populated area of London, and known locally to the people of the neighborhood as "The Projectile," is a factory where thousands of big shells are being turned out.

Water is the active agent in the work of manufacture. A number of engines force water through pipes laid underground to a hydraulic ram weighted with a hundred tons of scrap iron. When the weight reaches a certain height it automatically cuts off the steam supply and so stops the engines.

Shells have their beginnings in oblong ingots of steel which are delivered to the company in that form ready for molding. They are heated in specially constructed furnaces to a temperature of 2,000 degrees. After the heating, the ingots are put through molds. Copper hands are fixed to the base of the shaped shells, to give the necessary spin when fired. Then the gun-metal conical head, pierced to receive the exploding fuse, is affixed and the shells are ready for delivery to the government.

Shell-making is a matter of great accuracy and scrupulous care. Gauges of the most exacting nature are used, and no latitude in the matter of weight or dimensions is allowed. Admirals and war office officials are always on the premises, applying their own tests, and a shell is accepted and paid for only when the official approval is permanently stamped on it by means of a die.
