Court Upholds School Board
In Closing Hooper Grades

An official decision was handed down by the Utah state supreme court yesterday upholding action by the Weber county school board in closing out the junior high grades at Hooper school.

The decision reverses a Second district court judgment last year which held that the school board was without authority to close out the three grades and transport children to another school.

The higher court had given an oral report on its decision earlier. Parents of school children in three county school areas brought suit against the school board in regard to its "consolidation" program.

The program planned the transporting of children in junior high school grades to the Wahlquist school in Marriott. Schools affected were Huntsville, Hooper and Taylor.

The state supreme court held that the school board does have power to discontinue operations of established schools in the interest of better education and if adequate transportation is provided.

Negro Residents of Terrace
Protest Relocation Plans

WASHINGTON TERRACE — An angry delegation of Negro "Terrace" residents last night protested lot allocation plans which would move them more than a mile away into what they called a "gully."

Their spokesman, Sam King, charged "race discrimination" and said the 22 families of his race would not surrender their present location without a fight. They are presently grouped on G court along Washington Blvd.

Spokesmen for the board of directors denied the charges, saying the subdivision relocation plans were made by architects who had no knowledge of where various groups lived. They claimed the new location would be one of the most desirable when landscaping plans were completed.

Only five members of the board were present. Four were working. Those on hand defended their position by saying they had no part in the plan which was drawn up by an engineering firm after seven months' study.

To a man, they denied the "discrimination" charge, saying that they legislated for the Terrace as a whole and not for a particular group.

Moreover, George Van Leeuwen, president of the board, declared that the Negro group had been selected entirely by chance and that the engineers knew nothing of the identity of occupants when the choice was made.

It was his suggestion that cleared the way for negotiations on Monday night when the board, the engineering firm and a five-man committee representing the protestants, will attempt to reach agreement.

Frequently Mr. King interrupted explanations and at one point Director Herbert Lane demanded a little more courtesy, then abruptly yielded the floor on grounds that the meeting was "getting nowhere."

Order Restored

Order was restored by some of the less talkative residents who said they wanted to hear it all. Representatives from the 22 Negro families assembled in the administration building at 6 p. m. to protest the engineering plan that would pick their homes out of G court on Army way and relocate them in a subdivision at the

Defends Proposal

President Van Leeuwen reviewed the master relocation proposal, defending it as the product of months of intensive study.

He said the board had been in hot water "from both sides" since a number of residents had specifically asked that their homes be transferred to the site reserved for the Negroes.

"I think we can easily find 22 who want to move there," he said, "and if there is no additional cost I have no objection to the plan."

Raymond Freeman, G-15 Army way, said his principal objection to the proposal was the apparent "segregation and a violation of our constitutional rights."

"We have had this land along the boulevard for eight or nine years and we think it's pretty valuable. We are entitled to stay there."

Ward to Hear
Missionary

Elder Gordon L. Belnap, recently returned from the L.D.S. mission in Finland, will speak at the L.D.S. 20th ward sacrament service Sunday at 5:30 p. m.

Elder Belnap was honorably released Feb. 18 at Helsinki after serving in the Swedish speaking sector of Finland for 33 months. During this time he was junior companion in Larsmo, Vasa and Jakobstad; senior and presiding elder in Jakobstad, Vasa, Ekenas and Nykarleby, and district president in the Larsmo district.

The success of the music and radio programs in the Larsmo district was the result of Elder Belnap's talents.

A reception will be held in the recreation hall after the service. Refreshments will be served. Public is invited.

'Diaper Bandit'
Admits Guilt

Two accused Ogden "diaper bandits" were arraigned in Second district court yesterday. One pleaded guilty to a robbery charge. The other will enter a plea next Monday.

Pleading guilty was Harry Sandman, 29, of J-45 Victory road, Washington Terrace. To plead Monday is Dewey V. Thompson, 20, of J-48 Victory road, Washington Terrace.

The two men, in company with a juvenile companion, are accused of entering an Ogden residence, holding up the occupants, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Holstrom and making off with some $34. They allegedly were masked with diapers.

The juvenile has been committed to the state industrial school by Judge W. Lee Skanchy of First district juvenile court.

Sandman was referred to the state adult probation department for investigation and report.
