

UTAH SCHOOL RATING O. K.

American Bar Association Approves Standards of University Law Course

The American Bar association announces in a bulletin just published that the law school at the University of Utah complies with the standards prescribed by the association and has been granted "A" rating among the nation's law schools. The requirements for such rating are stated in the following resolution of the association: "The school shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college; (b) it shall require the students to pursue a course of three years' duration, if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only part of their working time to their studies; (c) it shall provide an adequate library available for the use of students; (d) it shall have among its teachers a sufficient number of persons whose entire time to the school is to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence upon the whole student body."

The law library of the university, by virtue of recent purchases, contains approximately 8000 volumes of carefully selected books. The books have been selected with a view to procuring, first, all that is important to complete a practical working library, and, second, all of the works upon legal history and legal philosophy.

The requirement of the association which the university had not met until the past school year was that requiring a number of instructors giving their entire time to school work. The faculty for the next school year will include Dean William H. Leary, Associate Professors A. L. Jensen and Willis Ritter, with Justice D. N. Stearns, Henry D. Moxie and Hamilton Gardner as lecturers.

The school is listed in the bulletin with the University of Chicago, Yale, Columbia, Michigan, Harvard, Cornell, Pennsylvania and other schools that meet the standards of the association.

Registration for prelegal students in the law school will take place September 23 and 24, and registration of the regular law students September 26.

COLONEL LINDBERGH'S ARRIVAL AND RECEPTION IN SALT LAKE

GROWTH OF COLLEGE PORTRAYED

STAGES of the growth of the Sacred Heart academy of Ogden, from the time when the institution was first opened, fifty years ago, to the present day's commodious building, are shown in the accompanying photographs. At the lower right is shown the first building, which was a reconditioned residence, standing at Washington avenue and Twenty-sixth street. The upper picture shows a recent view of the front of the building, and the lower left shows the academy shortly after their commodious quarters were built.

Growth of College During Fifty Years Told; Two Holy Cross Sisters Still Living.

OGDEN, Sept. 3.—Fifty years ago this week seven sisters of the Holy Cross arrived in Ogden and opened the Sacred Heart academy. It is of special significance, therefore, that the academy begins its fiftieth year Tuesday morning.

Sister Flavia is to the academy the one living link between the old and the new. Last Sunday she had been a resident of Ogden fifty years, being one of the original seven. She has watched the school in every day of its existence. The only other living member of the band of seven is Sister Bernarda, who is now on duty at the mother house at Notre Dame, Ind. Other sisters who founded the academy were Sisters Francis, Evangelista, Georgia, Antietus and Calasactius.

EARLY HISTORY.

Recollections of the founding of the Sacred Heart academy, still fresh in the memory of many residents of this city, show the city still in the embryo. Those were the days of board sidewalks, dusty or muddy streets, depending on the season of the year. That time was a quarter of a century before the advent of the automobile in Ogden. Ogden had only a few thousand inhabitants and the Union depot was only a shanty-like affair.

Educational facilities were limited in those days. It is remembered that Floriana de Voto taught school in the old St. Joseph's church building on lower Twenty-fifth street. Utah's efficient public school system had not been established at that time.

The first home of Sacred Heart was in the large mansion-like residence, perhaps the outstanding one in the city, which stood where the Watson Buick auto company now stands on Washington avenue near Twenty-sixth street, which was then Main and Sixth streets, respectively. No traffic whizzed by in those days as at present and the place was attractive because of its smooth lawns and bright flower beds.

GROWTH TOLD.

By 1882 the academy had grown to such an extent that it became necessary to erect a boys' school across the back yard and fronting on Twenty-sixth street. This was a small wooden structure which served until five years ago.

A large number of the city's prominent men and women were given their A. B. C. at the old Sacred Heart academy. One of the school's first pupils was State Senator John S. Lewis, who came to Ogden in 1869 and entered the academy, in either his first or second year; he does not recollect which. Senator Lewis treasures a photograph of the old academy which he has given for use of The Tribune.

The last boom for the academy was the coming of Monsignor P. M. Guinan in 1893. Old-timers remember him as the boy priest, he being then only 23, and especially recall his enthusiasm and zeal. Father Guinan had his Catholic following to erect St. Joseph's church, the eminent edifice which still stands an outstanding structure, and his courage and help assisted the sisters of the Holy Cross to move from the downtown site to

Movie Strike Comes to End

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP).—Chicago movies will move again tomorrow after approximately 400 motion picture shows and vaudeville houses had been closed since last Monday because one theater wanted to employ two operators and the union insisted that it employ four.

The strike and lockout was ended this evening in the offices of Mayor Thompson, where exhibitors, machine operators and stage hands' representatives met after the mayor had announced he represented the public, which wanted movies over Sunday and Labor day.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

The terms of settlement were not divulged, it being announced that both sides had agreed to keep the matter quiet. The mayor, in statement, however, said that "the final settlement was a compromise, which showed a splendid spirit of Americanism." The mayor's statement said that "all parties concerned left happy."

The trouble started when the Belmont theater, which recently changed its policy and became a vaudeville house, decided to dispense with the services of two of its four machine operators, while the union insisted that the theater's contract called for employing four men.

MOVIE STRIKE COMES TO END

Four Hundred Chicago Houses, Closed a Week, Open by Agreements.

CHICAGO, Sept. 3 (AP).—Chicago movies will move again tomorrow after approximately 400 motion picture shows and vaudeville houses had been closed since last Monday because one theater wanted to employ two operators and the union insisted that it employ four.

The strike and lockout was ended this evening in the offices of Mayor Thompson, where exhibitors, machine operators and stage hands' representatives met after the mayor had announced he represented the public, which wanted movies over Sunday and Labor day.

EVERYBODY HAPPY.

The terms of settlement were not divulged, it being announced that both sides had agreed to keep the matter quiet. The mayor, in statement, however, said that "the final settlement was a compromise, which showed a splendid spirit of Americanism." The mayor's statement said that "all parties concerned left happy."

The trouble started when the Belmont theater, which recently changed its policy and became a vaudeville house, decided to dispense with the services of two of its four machine operators, while the union insisted that the theater's contract called for employing four men.

The operators' union called machine operators of all Orpheum circuit theaters, with which the Belmont is affiliated, out on strike Monday afternoon and two hours later the exhibitors retaliated with a lockout, closing upward of 400 movie and vaudeville houses.

During the week the contract of the state had expired and they joined forces with the operators in calling a general strike in Chicago houses. The dispute with operators and stage hands was reported settled today, but the musicians' union contract expires Monday, although negotiations for a new contract are said already to be under way.

Three Report Their Pockets Were Picked

Sandy Resident Regains His Pocketbook by Quick Action.

C. S. Sorenson, six-foot resident of Sandy, told a pickpocket in the jam outside the west door of the Hotel Utah Saturday night when Colonel Charles Lindbergh passed through on his way to the Tabernacle.

Mr. Sorenson, as he was carried along by the crowd, felt someone giving him the once-over, and grabbed the man behind him when he found his pocketbook missing. The man yanked away, and when Sorenson again grappled with him attempted to grab the thief by the collar. Sorenson stepped on it, retrieving it before going after the thief, who slipped away in the crowd.

Detectives Saturday were investigating two robberies in which pickpockets were supposed to have worked.

Art Stewart, an employee of The Salt Lake Tribune, said his pockets were picked of $20 and some small change while boarding a street car about 5 p. m. at Sixth East and Ninth South streets. Two men were suspected by Stewart who furnished the police with their descriptions.

J. W. Morand of 724 South Eighth west street told police he lost two ten-dollar bills, which were in his left pocket, when he boarded a street car just before noon at Second South and Main streets.
